Partnerships. In healthcare, partnerships are imperative in everything from leveraging expertise of multiple professions gathered at a patient's bedside to looking across major health-systems for statewide coordination of population health. For a professional organization, partnerships are equally varied and span a similarly wide breadth from industry partners supporting an hour of continuing education to national professional organizations collaborating on creation of practice guidelines. As the Society of Infectious Diseases Pharmacists, we are in all of these various arenas through our members and committees. Prudent and appropriate antimicrobial use has been a stalwart of all of our members' activities – from before antimicrobial stewardship became a household (ok, healthcare) name. With this much history of partnering, why the emphasis on partnerships now? It's because for SIDP - the game is changing.

The Society was invited to the White House in June. Let that sink in for a bit. Go back and read it again – SIDP was at the White House. Your member-driven Society was invited with groups across the country to a summit at the White House to discuss national measures to improve antimicrobial use. The presidents of the Society for Healthcare Epidemiology of America (SHEA) and the Infectious Diseases Society of America (IDSA) both called out SIDP as vital partners from the front of the room. This comes on top of increased collaborations with these specialty societies in aligning practice statements, political action, and the educational needs of the public and healthcare practitioners. SIDP has also joined broad national groups like the National Quality Forum in looking at national stewardship policy development. So now that we're sharing these national spotlights instead of chasing them, why all the continued urgent partnership talk? Well this will not shock anyone, but antimicrobial use and the need for its improvement do not end at the hospital exit door. The role of antimicrobial stewardship will need to expand beyond the traditional hospital teams. We know the wave of prudent and appropriate antimicrobial use is hardly perfect in acute care, but at least we know that conversation. But, new and bigger conversations are afoot.

Moving forward, SIDP will need to continue to maintain and enhance the strong partnerships we have across professional organizations, industry, and healthcare. But we will also have to look for new partners as we better appreciate the needs of stewardship in the non-acute care settings. Long term care, ambulatory care, and community pharmacy are three venues where traditional antimicrobial stewardship models will need to be adapted and in some cases created. There are countless opportunities for new partnerships to identify the needs of these new programs and new settings and to leverage the strengths of our Society and our members' expertise. We will need to work with our community and non-acute care colleagues in pharmacy and beyond to share current practices and understand the challenges of variable healthcare logistics. For many of us who have always called an academic health system hospital our home, this is a radical transformation in thought. The one thing that will make this journey better and enhance its success – partnerships. Let's continue the march.

- Explore additional ways in which accomplishments of SIDP and its members can be publicly recognized
- Define criteria for "fellow" status within SIDP

Recognition Awards Committee

- Four awarded categories for 2015:
 - Clinician of the Year
 - Young Investigator of the Year
 - Impact Paper of the Year
 - Distinguished Service Award

Clinician of the Year

The purpose of this award is to:

- Recognize an SIDP member who has developed an innovative and/or excellent clinical practice site

Areas of contribution to infectious diseases pharmacotherapy may include, but are not limited to, development of innovative services, documentation of benefits, and methods of promoting the safe, effective, and rational use of anti-infective agents.

Clinician of the Year

- Outstanding Clinical Practice in Infectious Diseases Pharmacotherapy
- Jerod Nagel,
Pharm.D., BCPS
AQ-ID

Young Investigator of the Year

The purpose of this award is to:

- Recognize past research accomplishments
- Reward young investigators who show research promise in the broad area of infectious diseases

Preference is given to independent research work conducted after completion of terminal education and training. Nominees are evaluated on research funding, publication record, leadership, teaching and honors or awards received for their research.

Young Investigator of the Year

- 2015 Young Investigator Award
- Nimish Patel,
Pharm.D., Ph.D.

Impact Paper of the Year

The purpose of this award is to:

- Recognize a significant contribution to the peer-reviewed literature in infectious diseases pharmacotherapy by an active or associate SIDP member

Nominees are evaluated primarily based on their contribution to the paper and the impact or significance of the publication.

Impact Paper of the Year

- Lodise TP, Drusano GL, Zasowski E, Dihmess A, Lazariu V, Cosler L, McNutt LA. Vancomycin exposure in patients with methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus bloodstream infections: how much is enough? Clin Infect Dis 2014 Sep 1;59(5):666-75.

Distinguished Service Award

The purpose of this award is to:

- Recognize outstanding and sustained service to the Society. Non-annual award is given for outstanding contributions to the Society or ensuring the advancement of its goals that far exceed the usual devotion of time, energy, or material goods.

Nominees are evaluated on service to elected offices, committee work, contribution to practice and education, publications, external representation of SIDP.

Distinguished Service Award

- 2015 SIDP Distinguished Service Award
- Vanthida Huang, Pharm.D., BSPHM, FCCP

Who am I?

- BS and Pharm.D. – Rutgers
- Pharmacy Practice Residency – VCU Health System
- Infectious Diseases Residency – Duke University Hospital

- Antimicrobial Stewardship Pharmacist – Hahnemann University Hospital
- Clinical Professor; Clinical Specialist, Infectious Diseases; Director, PGY2 Residency in Infectious Diseases Pharmacy – Temple University

SIDP – My View

- Member-driven
- Respected by other organizations
- Membership is changing into a diverse mix of researchers and clinicians
- Stewardship certificate program has grown significantly in influence and importance, but we are not an educational company

Principles

- SIDP is a respected organization with influence that is valued
- ID pharmacists have value that has increased
- Antimicrobial stewardship is becoming the law of the land
- We need to be the stewards

Priorities

- Grow SIDP's influence in government affairs and the political process
- Expand and protect the role of the ID pharmacist in antimicrobial stewardship
- Increase the depth and number of collaborative relationships with other organizations
- Shape BPS certification in infectious diseases pharmacotherapy into something meaningful
